

This rain barrel is ready for freezing weather. It has been emptied and turned upside-down. The spigot was already loose, so we turned it right-side up to prevent water from pooling/freezing inside of the spout. A plastic baggie or tape would have also worked. The bricks help weigh it down to prevent it from blowing over.